Snow Days

Each time we have no school due to severe weather, we add another day of school in May. Since we have had 6 snow days at this point, our last day of classes is currently scheduled for Wednesday, May 26. According to the board approved calendar, that date is also the last possible day of school scheduled for 2009-10. If we have too many snow days, we will possibly eliminate “no school” days that are currently on the school calendar. For example, last year we had school on the Monday after Easter even though it was originally a “no school” day. My guess is the weather and calendar will be a point of discussion with the Superintendent and school board members at upcoming meetings.
